Undergraduate Degree Programs

Colleges and Other Degree-Granting Units

The following University units offer undergraduate majors leading to baccalaureate and associate degrees: Abington College; Altoona College; College of Agricultural Sciences; College of Arts and Architecture; Penn State Erie, The Behrend College; Berks College; Smeal College of Business; Capital College; College of Communications; College of Earth and Mineral Sciences; College of Education; College of Engineering; College of Health and Human Development; College of Information Sciences and Technology; College of the Liberal Arts; Eberly College of Science; University College (which comprises several Penn State campuses); and the School of Nursing. The Pennsylvania College of Technology in Williamsport provides an alternative educational setting in which students may enroll in selected degree programs.

Students who do not want to enroll immediately in one of the colleges or other degree-granting units may enroll in the Division of Undergraduate Studies, typically for one year or slightly more.

Majors leading to baccalaureate degrees are described in this bulletin under buttons for the colleges and other degree-granting units. Information is also accessible on the Internet through www.psu.edu (the Penn State home page).

This is the official bulletin of The Pennsylvania State University. Programmatic expectations for General Education are those in effect at the time of admission to degree candidacy, and college and major requirements are those in effect at the time of entry to college and major. These are accurately indicated in each student's degree audit.

The University reserves the right to change the requirements and regulations listed here and to determine whether a student has satisfactorily met its requirements for admission or graduation, and to reject any applicant for any reason the University determines to be material to the applicant's qualifications to pursue higher education. Nothing in this material should be considered a guarantee that completion of a program and graduation from the University will result in employment.

The University Faculty Senate has responsibility for and authority over all academic information contained in the Undergraduate Bulletin.
