

BIOBEHAVIORAL HEALTH

Learning Outcomes

KNOW:

Graduates will demonstrate mastery of the literature regarding biological, psychological, sociocultural, ethical, behavioral, and environmental influences on health and the ability to engage in research in this area.

APPLY/CREATE:

Graduates will be able to review the relevant literature and generate ideas for novel research questions;

COMMUNICATION:

Graduates will articulate arguments and ideas with clarity in oral presentations and written formats and will use appropriate disciplinary conventions

CRITICAL THINKING:

Graduates will articulate arguments and ideas with logic and clarity in oral presentations and written formats and will show evidence of independent critical thinking and analysis.