Labor and Global Workers’ Rights is a Master of Professional Studies (M.P.S.) program of study for professionals working in the area of global labor and workers’ rights issues who would like to continue or pursue a career working on global labor and worker rights with a national or international labor union or a related organization, such as a labor research institute.