

WOMEN'S, GENDER, AND SEXUALITY STUDIES

Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the dual-title graduate degree in WGSS, students are expected to:

1. Demonstrate deep conceptual and historical understanding of intersectional feminist theory and methods;
2. Apply current feminist literature from their partner discipline to their own research agenda;
3. Comprehend the conceptual and practical dimensions of feminist pedagogy, for those planning an academic career;
4. Formulate and execute an independent research project that significantly furthers knowledge and theory within interdisciplinary feminist scholarship;
5. Communicate effectively conceptual and methodological arguments in both written and oral formats to interdisciplinary audiences;
6. Exhibit a commitment to professional standards and ethics in teaching, research, and service.