

GLOBAL AWARENESS, CERTIFICATE

Requirements for an undergraduate certificate may be completed at any campus location offering the specified courses for the certificate.

Program Description

The certificate gives students an appreciation of the world in which they will live and work. By introducing students first to the broad contours of the globalizing world and then adding more narrowly focused courses, the certificate will give students a sense of the diversity and complexity of the modern world.

What is Global Awareness?

No one can become an expert on the nearly 200 countries in the world. However, it is possible—essential, really—to gain an appreciation of the huge diversity and sweep of countries, cultures, and languages on our tiny planet. While you can't learn it all, you can gain an understanding of how the U.S. fits into the jigsaw puzzle that is the modern world.

You Might Like This Program If...

- You are curious about other countries and other cultures.
- You envision working outside the United States.
- You'd like to add liberal arts balance to a business or technical major.

Program Requirements

To earn an undergraduate certificate in Global Awareness, a minimum of 12 credits is required.

All 12 credits must be taken at Penn State; a C or higher is required in each course. Students taking a language can only apply the third level of proficiency when fulfilling the requirement. The third level of proficiency must be demonstrated through class work rather than by testing out of the class. In addition to the six required credits, students must complete six credits that focus on matters outside the United States.

Certificate Learning Objectives

1. List and describe the major inflection points in world history, ~ 1750-present.
2. Describe the diversity and complexity of the post-1945 world.
3. Recognize linguistic and cultural differences among countries.
4. Describe the central role of international organizations, e.g., WTO and European Union, in the modern world.
5. Describe the changing role of the U.S. in the "new world order."

Academic Advising

The objectives of the university's academic advising program are to help advisees identify and achieve their academic goals, to promote their intellectual discovery, and to encourage students to take advantage of both in-and out-of class educational opportunities in order that they become self-directed learners and decision makers.

Both advisers and advisees share responsibility for making the advising relationship succeed. By encouraging their advisees to become engaged in their education, to meet their educational goals, and to develop the habit of learning, advisers assume a significant educational role. The advisee's unit of enrollment will provide each advisee with a primary academic adviser, the information needed to plan the chosen program of study, and referrals to other specialized resources.
