SPRINTS JOURNALISM, CERTIFICATE

Requirements for an undergraduate certificate may be completed at any campus location offering the specified courses for the certificate.

Program Description
The program explores issues and trends through instruction, programming and research. The curriculum covers sports writing, sports broadcasting, sports information, sports ethics, sports media and society, sports industry, and sports and public policy. The Center (http://comm.psu.edu/about/centers/john-curley-center-for-sports-journalism/) emphasizes media-related internships. Students are encouraged to complete co-curricular work at the student-run newspaper, the campus radio and TV stations, and the Athletic Department. Students must earn a minimum of six credits from COMM 476, COMM 477 and/or COMM 478 and complete an on-campus sports media activity and/or internship.

What is Sports Journalism?
Thirty-one varsity teams. The chance to cover them in any format: multimedia, photo, text and video. Penn State students interested in sports communications and sports journalism careers are in the perfect spot to hone their skills. A combination of classroom instruction and co-curricular activities provide unrivaled opportunities to gain hands-on experience using the same hardware as professionals across the country, and often working side by side at major events with those professionals. Completing the certificate helps prepare students for opportunities with league, sport and team publicity and sports information operations, as well as members of the sports media in its varied formats.

Certificate Learning Objectives
1. REPORTING: Students will be able to report and create content on the stories that make up the core of sports writing: game stories; previews and follows; features; various kinds of enterprise.
2. JOURNALISM SKILLS: Students will be able to demonstrate competency in Associated Press style and basic grammar.
3. MULTIPLATFORM: Students will be able to demonstrate storytelling skills on multiple platforms.
4. SPORTS ISSUES: Students will demonstrate an understanding of the economic and societal issues facing the sports industry today.
5. ETHICS: Students will demonstrate a grounding in journalism ethics, particularly as it pertains to sports.

Academic Advising
The objectives of the university's academic advising program are to help advisees identify and achieve their academic goals, to promote their intellectual discovery, and to encourage students to take advantage of both in- and out-of-class educational opportunities in order that they become self-directed learners and decision makers.

Both advisers and advisees share responsibility for making the advising relationship succeed. By encouraging their advisees to become engaged in their education, to meet their educational goals, and to develop the habit of learning, advisers assume a significant educational role. The advisee's unit of enrollment will provide each advisee with a primary academic adviser, the information needed to plan the chosen program of study, and referrals to other specialized resources.
