Program Description

The Human Capital Management certificate provides students with key insights into foundational human capital management processes such as total rewards (compensation and benefits), selection and development, and performance management. As future organizational leaders and managers, the understanding of key human resource practices are needed by all majors from Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts, Math to Business.

What is Human Capital Management?

Human capital management (HCM) is an organization's set of practices used to attract, recruit, train, develop and retain the best employees to achieve short- and long-term objectives. HCM allows companies to invest in their employees who can maximize their potential by contributing at the highest level to the achievement of business goals. HCM sees employees as the essence of the company.

HCM focuses on adding value to an organization's human capital to deliver the best results for all stakeholders. It covers talent acquisition and management, employee relations, compensation, performance, and other key areas vital to the tactical and strategic vision and mission of a company.

HCM can create a strong organizational culture that promotes employee development, honest feedback and commitment to company goals. It can give employees more control over their careers and encourage them to dedicate their skills and talent to the employer for the long term.
