

ARMY ROTC

Career Paths

Army ROTC Cadets compete to serve on Active Duty, or elect to serve part-time in the US Army Reserve (USAR) or Army National Guard (ARNG). Career fields are wide ranging, including: Administrative Support, Intelligence/Combat Support, Arts/Media, Legal/Law Enforcement, Combat, Mechanics, Computers/Technology, Medical/Emergency, Construction/Engineering and Transportation/Aviation. Nearly any civilian professional career has an equivalent in the US Army. Graduates' salaries are above the national average for college grads, with regular raises and promotions in the first few years of service. Life and Health insurance are provided or available for both Active Duty and the Reserve Components (USAR/ARNG).

Opportunities for Graduate Studies

Army ROTC Cadets pursuing graduate degrees in certain professional fields (medical, legal) can seek an 'Educational Delay' to complete their subsequent education. Upon completion, those individuals practice their respective career fields as US Army Officers. Additional scholarship funding may be available through the US Army Health Professions Scholarship Program (HPSP).
